MODULES IN SCHOOL OF LAW

The Law Modules for 2025/26 are not finalised yet. Please refer to the PDF 'Law Modules Available to Visiting Students 2024/25' for information, but module availability will change for 2025/26.

Exchange students have access to a wide range of law modules. Access to some modules is conditional on the fulfilment of pre-requisites. All details can be found in this link:

<https://www.tcd.ie/law/programmes/undergraduate/modules/#VisitingLaw>

Modules on offer to exchange students are from the four years of the LL.B. programme, from 'Freshman' years (1st and 2nd Year) and 'Sophister' years (3rd and 4th year).

For a description of the law modules on offer, please visit our website:

<http://www.tcd.ie/law/programmes/undergraduate/modules>

If certain modules are required by the home university, it is advisable that exchange students inform the School of Law in their application form, and email law.exchange@tcd.ie, so that these requirements can be accommodated—however it is not guaranteed.

Please note that some law modules are not available to exchange students:

- Foundations of Law I and II
- Clinical Legal Education
- Critical Perspectives on Law
- Current Issues in Constitutional Law
- Dissertation
- Mooting
- Responsible Business, EGS and Ethics
- Capstone Research Project

Exchange/Erasmus students cannot take modules on the LL.M. programme, even if they are Masters students in their home university.

The School of Law uses the ECTS and modules are worth either 5 or 10 ECTS. It is standard that students complete 30 ECTS for one semester and 60 ECTS for the full academic year.

Exchange students are expected to complete the standard form of assessment in their modules. Trinity Law School cannot accommodate special assessment requests that go beyond the academic curriculum in the Law School.

You will be asked to fill an online module enrolment form prior to arrival. While the Law School will try to accommodate your first preference of modules, some modules may be full or there can be time-table clashes, so students need to have back-up modules. Students will finalise their module choices in the first weeks of term.
